

Course Content

- Preparation of the Research Proposal
- Writing Conceptual Framework
- Literature Review
- Framing Objectives and Research Questions
- Formulation of Hypothesis
- Designing the Research
- Preparation of Questionnaire and Schedules
- Presentation of Research Findings
- Writing of Research Papers
- References and Foot Notes
- Language of Research
- Ethics in Research
- Writing Research Report/Thesis

Dear Participants

This Research Methodology Course is open to doctoral and post-doctoral scholars in the early stages of their social science research projects. Preference would be given to Researchers from Bihar, Jharkhand, and surrounding States.

Researchers can apply by post, email, or by registering using the Google Form link. To apply via a Google form, candidates must attach a required application form recommended by the Head of the Institution/Department before Friday, February 28, 2025.

Only short-listed individuals will be invited to participate in the program.

The University will offer lodging and boarding for course participants on a shared basis

Intake

The intake for the course shall be maximum of 30 (10 from local, 10 from Bihar state other than local, and 10 from outside the Bihar state) participants from social science disciplines.

The Context.....

India, the quality of research conducted in Higher Education Institutions (HEIs) has been a longstanding concern. The University Grants Commission (UGC) and other research bodies have taken measures to ensure that HEIs produce research of the highest quality, which can be ranked among the top institutions globally. Achieving this goal, requires a strong foundation of scientific innovations, startups, and patents. To cultivate such a foundation, it is crucial that young researchers are exposed to the highest level of quality research. Research plays a crucial role in expanding domains of knowledge, developing new theories and laws, and providing solutions to problems. It opens new areas of thought and challenges existing theories in light of present circumstances. Therefore, it is essential that educational professionals understand research methodology, which is the systematic process of research. Familiarity with research methodology enables researchers to navigate specific situations and ensure the reliability and validity of their work. The Department of Media Studies at Mahatma Gandhi Central University, Motihari, Bihar, recognizes the importance of research and is dedicated to equipping young researchers with the knowledge and skills necessary for conducting social science research systematically. To this end, the department is organizing a Research Methodology Course that aims to provide young researchers with the tools, knowledge, and skills required for conducting quality research. The course will introduce participants to different research methods, including quantitative, qualitative, and mixed-method approaches. Special emphasis will be placed on qualitative approaches such as phenomenology, ethnography, and ethnomethodology. In addition to the challenges faced in conducting quality research, Ph.D. scholars in India encounter difficulties in preparing researchable synopses and publishing their research in peer-reviewed journals. While the recently initiated Pre-Ph.D. course work by the University Grants Commission (UGC) provides orientation to Ph.D. scholars, it does not always cater to their specific needs, particularly in terms of guiding them on how to write different components of a Ph.D. synopsis. Furthermore, traditional state-funded universities often fail to adequately orient Ph.D. scholars on writing research articles. By addressing these challenges and providing comprehensive research training, the Department of Media studies, Mahatma Gandhi Central University, Motihari, Bihar, aims to empower young researchers to conduct quality research and contribute to the advancement of HEIs in India and the global research community. Upholding the words of Rabindranath Tagore, "The highest education is that which does not merely give us information but makes our life in harmony with all existence," the department strives to fulfill this vision and create a better future for all. The Research Methodology Course under Training and Capacity Building Programme is designed to facilitate the initial phase of designing and planning a research work in social sciences by giving scholars a clear overview of the basic elements of research writing common to social sciences. The workshop/programme will introduce the essential elements of writing a thesis (issue, contexts, texts, methodology). After introducing these concepts, the workshop will facilitate research scholars to articulate these concepts in their research issues. The workshop/programme will orient the participants about various components of a research proposal. It will orient the participants about the writing of different components of the research thesis and research articles during their research work. The workshop will focus on developing arguments for their research problem for writing a synopsis and research papers, which will develop the skills of identifying the basic elements of description, analysis, and argument, and incorporating these elements in their writing practice.

About the university

Mahatma Gandhi Central University is a prestigious institution of higher education located in Motihari, District East Champaran, Bihar (India). Established in 2016, the university is named after the Father of the Nation, Mahatma Gandhi, and aims to provide high-quality education and research opportunities to students from all over India. Learning Outcomes

At the end of the research methodology course work, the participants will be able to:

- Understand the conceptual aspects of research approaches and techniques in social sciences.
- Familiarize with the core components of research work i.e., writing proposal and thesis.
- Engage in critical evaluation of each of the elements concerning their research work.
- Learn the uses of various research methods according to their type of research problem.
- Identify, explain, and apply the various research techniques in conducting research.
- Identify differences between description, analysis, and argument in social science writing.
- Conceptualize research paper writing in social sciences.
- Understand the different elements of research writing (issue, contexts, texts, methodology)
- Get knowledge about how to interlink different components of research writing (introduction, literature review, objective, research question, hypotheses, analysis, discussion, and conclusion)
- Know the use of e-resources and modern technology for undertaking good research writing in social sciences.
- Get orientation about the use of different citation styles and how to use referencing management tools in research writing.
- Prepare a coherent research proposal and report
